EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH

September's Employee of the Month goes to Paul, in recognition of his willingness to step up and go the extra mile whenever the team needs him. He consistently takes on challenging jobs, often at short notice, and can be relied on to see things through from start to finish. His initiative, reliability and commitment to getting the job done have certainly stood out this month. Congratulations, Paul! A well-deserved Employee of the Month!

One blood donation can help save up to three lives, with donors needed every 18 seconds in Australia. Small acts matter, including simply checking in with yourself.

What's Happened this Month

From classrooms to country roads, the Hot Chilli team has been busy!!! It's been another big stretch for the Hot Chilli crew, with our team clocking up plenty of kilometres, tackling some seriously technical jobs, and, as always, finding time to give back to the community. From school classrooms to rooftops, remote sites and even the blood donation chair, here's a little look at what the team has been up to!

During recent school maintenance checks, our team identified that several ceiling cassette air conditioning systems were due for a deeper clean to keep them performing at their best. Khan and Memphis were back on site to tackle the deep cleans, with the trusty catch bag making another appearance to keep the mess away from the classroom. A proper clean doesn't just make a system look better it helps keep air conditioning systems running efficiently and classrooms comfortable. Clean systems. Happy classrooms.

Meanwhile, Toby was up on the roof with the tools out and the sun shining, getting stuck into some electrical and air conditioning work. With the unit opened up and the controls ready for some attention, there aren't many office views quite like this one! And by the looks of the photo, Toby was soaking up every second of that sunshine!

The Hot Chilli shirts have been getting plenty of kilometres lately! Paul and Nick have been putting the pink shirts to work on remote jobs, tackling some serious refrigeration equipment repairs. This trip was no quick drive around the corner either, the boys travelled from Hervey Bay all the way down to South Australia, clocking up over 2,000 km by road. That's a lot of highway! Remote jobs are a great reminder that refrigeration and air conditioning is about so much more than just keeping things cool.

There's plenty of technical knowledge, problem-solving and teamwork involved in keeping larger systems running properly. And when you're travelling that far for work, you might as well grab a photo along the way! The boys even stopped for a quick snap at Nappa Merrie Crossing! Big equipment, big distances, plenty of teamwork and of course, the pink shirts still making an appearance.

And finally, one of the biggest things happening outside the tools. Jed recently rolled up his sleeve and donated blood and we couldn't be prouder to see one of our team members giving back. It's easy to think of the work we do in terms of machines, buildings and equipment, but being part of a good team is about more than the job. Sometimes it's about taking a little time out of your day to give something that someone else desperately needs. According to the nurses there, not all heroes wear capes, some just have really nice veins! Big thumbs up from us, Jed.
